

Fifty Shades of Green: Antonia Lowden

McKinley Arts and Culture Center: Gallery West

July 3 – August 14, 2015

Reception: July 9, 5:30-7:30pm

McKinley Gallery West hosts new work by local artist Antonia Lowden. Fifty Shades of Green features tapestries that explore the artist's changing impression of the Arizona landscape in winter. The variety of desert plants, the rich tones of the first light, and the ancient sandstone ruins of Arizona all inform this new body of work.

"Until I had spent a winter in Arizona I hadn't had a chance for close observation of the diversity of the magnificent landscape and the unforgettable symbols of it's many geographic personalities." - Toni Lowden

Antonia Lowden received an MFA in Textiles from JFK University/Fiberworks, Berkeley, California. Lowden has shown work extensively in Northern Nevada, from Sierra Nevada College, to the Nevada Museum of Art. Her work is in the collection of the Nevada Museum of Art, the First Interstate Bank of Nevada, Bank of America, St. Mary's Hospital, and the New Pennington Medical School at the University of Nevada, Reno, among others.
